

Preschool Moments

Preschool is full of wonder and joy...

Here in preschool we do everything 'hands on'. This is especially true with early math skills. While working with small manipulative bears, I asked the following question... "Two polar bears are on an iceberg, and then each polar bear had six friends join them. How many polar bears are on the iceberg now?" You could immediately see his wheels spinning. He put two bears on the iceberg, and then slowly counted out six bears to place next to each bear. He jumped up and down shouting, I DID IT! I DID IT! 14 BEARS! 14 BEARS! It is excitement like this that makes learning fun!

Another time...

We just finished acting out the story of Moses parting the Red Sea. I asked my friends, "What does this story have to do with you and me?" A student's hand shot right up and said, "That God will always help us!" He was so confident in his answer!
